We are committed to making Tiny Trees affordable for you. All programs have two prices, a regular price and a financial assistance price. If you look at our regular tuition and think “I can’t afford that” then you most likely qualify for the financial assistance price. Learn more here.

If the financial assistance price is still a stretch then you may qualify for free tuition from the Seattle Preschool Program – Pathways. To qualify you must make less than $72,000 for a family of 4 and live in the Seattle city limits.

- Financial assistance is available for all locations. We budget for over half of our families to receive financial assistance of 40% or more off the market price.
- Free tuition is available through the Seattle Preschool Program – Pathways. Currently we have free tuition at Carkeek Park. See if you qualify here. * On March 3 we will learn if free tuition will be available at Camp Long, Jefferson, Downtown Seattle, or John C Little Parks.
- We’re lowering our prices. We lowered our prices for the 2017-18 school year by 2-3% from last year. It’s a small amount, but as Seattle gets more expensive we want to do our part to help children & families.

Interested in why we chose a two price system (instead of just giving everyone 25% off)? Read about the need for equity vs. equality in education here.

Here’s the fine print on tuition:

- Tiny Trees tuition is paid monthly.
- Tuition is due 1 day before the beginning of the month. For example September tuition is due on August 31. There’s a $30 late fee, so please pay on time.
- A non-refundable deposit is required to enroll and covers the last month your child is attending (typically the last month before they go to kindergarten).
- For new families here’s how to budget: You will pay a one-time deposit when you enroll (typically in the spring) and then pay tuition for September on August 31.

See TinyTrees.org to learn more about our classes, locations, and teachers.

Including opportunities to tour one of our outdoor classroom and meet the amazing educators and families that make it all possible.
